Fire Destroys Galion Church, Parsonage

BLAZE FOUGHT ALL NIGHT TO CHECK SPREAD

Home and Church of Former Marionite Burns with Loss of $85,000.

Special to The Star

GALION, Dec. 2—Fire swept through the First Evangelical United Brethren church and adjoining parsonage here last night, destroying both buildings.

Total damage from the fire, which was believed to have started in the church furnace room, was set at $85,000. Galion firemen fought the blaze from 9:30 last night until 4 a. m. today to keep it from spreading to adjoining homes. The church was partially covered by insurance. Bucyrus and Crestline fire departments also sent equipment to help fight the blaze.

Both the church and the parsonage were still smoldering this morning after firemen had fought the flames throughout the night, using five two and one-half inch hose lines.

Pastor Discovers Fire

The fire was discovered by the pastor, Dr. C. V. Roop, when he heard a crackling sound and saw flames coming from the basement of the church. Dr. Roop, a former pastor of First United Brethren church in Marion, and his family, were forced to take refuge in a neighbor's home when the blaze spread swiftly to the parsonage. Members of the Roop household included Dr. and Mrs. Roop, Mrs. Roop's invalid mother, Mrs. Della Heaton, and Mrs. Belle Kinney of McClure, a cousin of Mrs. Roop who was visiting there.

Services had concluded at the church only a few minutes before the fire was discovered. The church, a brick structure, was built in 1900, and was located on East Walnut street, one block south of the center of town. An alley separates the church from the First Methodist church, where the flames threatened to spread. Also threatened were frame dwellings on the opposite side of the street.

The church has a membership of 631 and its auditorium had a seating capacity of 500.

As the fire spread to the parsonage the Roop family took shelter in the home of Lloyd Moore across the street. Mr. Moore suffered a heart attack and a physician was called, but his condition today was reported improved.

Church Redecorated

The church recently had been redecorated and a new public address system had been installed. It contained a fully equipped basement with a new $300 refrigerator. Members of the Galion Rotary club held their Monday night dinner meetings there.

Only a few incidentals from the church and the parsonage were saved. Among the items destroyed were all of Dr. Roop's books, including 73 sermons, a manuscript for a book he was writing, all of his diplomas including a doctor of divinity degree from Otterbein college.

Dr. Roop came to Galion in 1941 from Findlay. Previously he was pastor of First United Brethren church in Marion for 12 years.

FIRE DAMAGES FARM HOUSE NEAR LA RUE

Upper Floor Burns with Loss of $4,500.

Special to The Star

LARUE, Dec. 2—Fire believed to have been started by sparks from the chimney, destroyed the upper story of the farm home of William Buyer, five miles south of here on route 37 at 7 a. m. The building was partially covered by insurance. Damage was estimated at $4,500.

The LaRue fire department prevented the flames from spreading to the lower floor of the two-story frame building. All furniture was carried from the lower floor, but furnishings in the upper story were destroyed.

VISION GROUP MEETING HERE

Officers of Optometric Association Visit Marion at Invitation of Dr. Stengel.

Members of the board of trustees of the American Optometric association went into the third day of a semi-annual meeting at Hotel Harding today.

Members of the board from all parts of the country were attending at the invitation and in honor of the association's treasurer, Dr. F. A. Stengel of Marion.

The group will complete its business sessions today and will spend tomorrow sightseeing and inspecting Dr. Stengel's varied collections.

Push Vision Tests

Plans were being made at the meeting for a drive to expand and make uniform drivers' vision tests throughout the country. It was pointed out by members of the group that Ohio is one of eight states in which no vision test at all is required in applicants for licenses and that tests in other states are not adequate.

Another aim of the group is a change in the color of the bright red caps worn by hunters. Such a shade of red is one of the colors not distinguishable by color blind persons, which comprise about four per cent of the population, and such inadequate precautions make color blind hunters a menace, spokesmen said. They suggested an orange or checkered cap.

Plans also are being made for establishment of a foundation for research in visual problems. Ohio State university is being considered as one of the centers of the foundation.

Present at Meeting

Attending the meeting are Dr. Edmund F. Richardson of Hollywood, Calif., president of the association; Dr. John B. O'Shea, of Northampton, Mass., first vice president; Dr. J. Otis White of Baton Rouge, La., second vice president; Dr. Joseph Babcock of Portsmouth, O., third vice president; Dr. F. A. Stengel of Marion, treasurer; Dr. E. H. Kiekenapp of Minneapolis, Minn., secretary and editor of the Journal of the American Optometric Association; and Dr. John J. Brady of Sheldon, Iowa, and Dr. William C. Ezell of Spartenburg, S. C., trustees.

Mother and Six of Her 10 Children Die in Fire

By The Associated Press

WEST GROTON, N. Y., Dec. 2—A mother and six of her 10 children were dead today as the result of a fire in this Tompkins county hamlet which destroyed the two-story frame home into which the family moved only two months ago.

The victims were Mrs. John Dew, 45, Jean, 11, Patsy, 10, Beverly, 7, Jacqueline, 4, Lowell, 2, and Donna May, five months.

Skidding Mercury Puts Heavy Drain on Shrinking Coal Stock

Marionites shivered and threw an extra few shovelfuls of precious coal on the fire today after the mercury skidded 15 degrees from yesterday afternoon's high to a chilling 11 above this morning.

In Marion and throughout the country piles of carefully hoarded coal were being depleted as temperatures fell an average of 20 degrees over the eastern half of the United States last night and New England braced for a further drop to sub-zero weather tonight.

Marion and many other points also got their first taste of snow yesterday. Precipitation here was recorded as .03 of an inch only a trace. It came later than is usual, observers said.

Dig Out of Snow

Youngstown, however, was digging out of a snow storm which, accompanied by falling temperatures last night tangled traffic throughout the area and caused one death. The Associated Press reported. Charles Koken, 73, died today as the result of injuries sustained in a fall of icy sidewalks.

The first snow and lowest temperatures this fall hit Ohio generally Sunday and last night, The Associated Press reported.

The cold was expected to continue today despite a bright sun but warmer weather was forecast for Tuesday.

Mt. Vernon's seven degrees was the coldest reported for last night. Toledo had eight degrees, a drop from Sunday's maximum of 42 there.

Columbus, Dayton and Washington C. H. all had 12-degree recordings, Akron had 16 and at Cleveland it was 19 last night.

Northern Ohio got nearly two inches of snow and lesser amounts fell generally over the state. The State highway patrol said all roads were clear today.

The change was in marked contrast to moderate temperatures Saturday. The Columbus weather bureau reported Saturday readings of 15 degrees above normal but said they dropped to normal that night.

On Sunday the mercury tumbled from 55 to 17 degrees during the 24 hours, the weather bureau reported. Last night's 12 degrees was the season's coldest in Columbus, the report added.

Covers Wide Area

The present cold wave was felt from Maine to Florida along the Atlantic coast, and extended generally eastward from Minnesota and the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. To the west, the usually cold great plains and Rocky Mountain area reported comparatively mild weather last night.

The nation's official extreme drop in temperature last night was 42 degrees at Huntington, W. Va., where the mercury plunged from 54 degrees yesterday afternoon to a low of 12 above last night. New York City reported a drop from yesterday's high of 54 to 15.5 last night.

Even Florida felt the chill and Atlanta reported a low of 29 degrees last night.

There was frost in southern Mississippi and central Alabama.

The cold center tonight was expected to cover the general area from Maine southwestward to Ohio.

Lack of Heat Closes School

Harding's students arriving back at school after a Thanksgiving vacation of two days were dismissed this morning's session before could be gotten under way because it was not warm enough in the school rooms to hold classes.

The cause of the trouble was the sudden cold spell and boiler trouble in the school's heating plant.

It was expected at first that the trouble could be remedied so that classes could be held this afternoon but this was found to be impossible.

School authorities said the trouble will be cleared up by tomorrow and school sessions resumed at the usual morning hour.

BOYS INJURE, ROB WOMAN

Purse with $50 Taken by Youthful Pair in Holdup at Apartment Entrance.

Miss Fannie Graves of 235 South Main street suffered a broken wrist when she was attacked by two boys and her purse stolen Saturday night as she was entering her home.

She described her assailants as two well-dressed, teen-age boys. They took from her a purse containing about $50 and checks and papers, she said. X-rays yesterday revealed that she suffered fractures of two bones in her left wrist as she fell on the cement steps leading to her basement apartment in the Elite apartment building.

Miss Graves said the attack occurred as she and a visitor, Mrs. Maud McGill of Springfield, were returning from the theater. As they approached the Elite apartments, they related, they saw two boys coming north on South Main street. Mrs. McGill went down the basement steps to open the door and as Miss Graves started to descend the steps, one of the boys grabbed the purse from her. While struggling she fell down.

The boys then ran up an adjacent alley. All available city police were sent to search the downtown area immediately following the incident.

Miss Graves operates a beauty parlor in the basement of the Elite apartments.

Lack of Coal Idles 104,000

Industrial Workers Laid Off in Addition to Nearly Half Million Miners.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2 — Lack of fuel today idled over 104,000 persons — in addition to 400,000 miners — as more and more coal consuming industries shut down in the soft coal crisis with the prospect of sharply rising unemployment ahead.

The long holiday weekend tended to hold down unemployment but twin hazards of coal shortages and dwindling supplies of steel promised to strike hard blows this week with possibilities of 1,000,000 being laid off at week's end.

Steel ingot production in the Youngstown district stood at 35 per cent of capacity, compared with 91 per cent two weeks ago. Only 35 of 83 open hearths were operating and nine of 25 blast furnaces. None of the area's three Bessemer converters was working. Unofficial estimates put loss of wages at more than $1,000,000.

Forty switching crews were laid off by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad in Ohio while the Pennsylvania furloughed 30 men and three crews. The Erie railroad sent members of six crews home.

In New York state, the Schenectady plant of General Electric laid off about 250 porcelain department workers with one spokesman predicting "slow strangulation."

"Star" Starting Its Seventieth Year As A Daily Newspaper

With Saturday's issue The Marion Star began its 70th year of publication. In 1877 the paper became a daily and the name was changed from the Pebble to The Marion Daily Star.

The paper was published by W. P. Hume and Brother and Sam Hume was the editor. It was printed in a building at the rear of what is now the Frank Fralich filling station lot on North State street, a spot then occupied by "Cap" Drake's livery stable.

In 1884 the paper was purchased by Warren G. Harding and two associates who sold him their partnership interests a few years later. Shortly after this time the printing office was moved to the third floor of the old Foley block on North Main street. Later the office was moved to a building on East Center street, now occupied by the Marion Waste Co. and apartments and in May of 1926 to its present location.

The first issues of the paper were four-page tabloids measuring 15 x 11 inches, news was headed out and printed on a flat bed press.

POWER SHOVEL MEETING HELD

Discuss New Model Machines at Field Service Men's 2-Day Session.

Field service men of the Marion Power Shovel company held a two-day meeting with the company's sales, service, production and engineering officials here Friday and Saturday to review developments of the past year, discuss new model machines in detail and study plans to further strengthen the company's service program in the field.

Plans were outlined for completely coordinating the efforts of the field men with the various departments of the factory, both with respect to the erecting of new machines and the servicing of machines on the job.

The discussion of new machines covered three new models the company has introduced since V-J day—the 151-M, six cubic yards; the 111-M, 3½-4 cubic yards; and the 93-M, 2½-3 cubic yards. Plans were also studied for a new ¾ cubic yard machine to be announced in the near future which will incorporate a number of new features of design and construction to fit it for a wide variety of services, including shovel, dragline, clamshell, crane, backhoe and pile driver service.

The two-day meeting was largely informal, devoted to discussion, and included short talks by sales, production, service and engineering officials, a banquet Friday night in the Hotel Harding ballroom and luncheons Friday and Saturday in the ballroom. The final feature of the program was a tour of the plant Saturday.

The company's 17 field service men, scattered throughout the nation, are in charge of erection of new machines and attending to field service requirements. Those attending the meeting, in addition to local executives, were Ed Clutter, Ralph Clutter, Murray Court, Bert Hansen, Fred Holverstott, Wayne Kuenzli, Ed Keeton, Gerry McCallum, C. R. Miller, R. L. McClenahen, L. D. May, R. F. Norris, Roy Reynolds, William Scheier, Frank Weaver, Al Whaley and Cleon Williams.

G.O.P. Studies War Powers Scale Down

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—Republicans are polling President Truman's cabinet on the question of which emergency war powers can be safely cut off and which should continue.

Senator Wiley (R-Wis) said today he had sent the inquiries to cabinet members and the head of the veterans administration to prepare the way for quick action by the new congress to terminate all possible war powers and controls.

"Some people, without thinking, are willing to decontrol, get rid of everything," he told reporters.

"But we want to be sure we cut off nuisance and not the important things. We want to be certain what we are pruning."

Lack of Fuel Begins To Hit Industry Here

St. Mary Building Has Fuel Supply for Only Eleven Days.

St. Mary school will close Dec. 13 because of a coal shortage and will not reopen until additional supplies are received, Rev. Father William J. Spickerman, director of the school, said today.

Father Spickerman said the school's coal supply would be exhausted by Dec. 13 and there were no prospects of getting any more. Whether or not the school will reopen after the Christmas holidays will depend entirely on whether coal can be obtained, Father Spickerman said. The close-up order will affect 330 grade pupils and 135 high school pupils.

Because of limited coal storage space, the school has not been able to maintain a large stock, and has depended on dealers to frequently replenish its coal supply, Father Spickerman said. He estimated the present supply would last until Dec. 13.

Other Coal Stocks Low

The rectory and other buildings at St. Mary also are running critically low of coal, but will continue to operate even if supplies are exhausted, Father Spickerman reported.

Marion public schools have sufficient coal to last them until the Christmas holiday season, according to E. E. Holt, superintendent of Marion schools, but will need a considerable stock after that time.

D. T. Mills, county school superintendent, said he had received no reports of coal shortages in the rural schools. He said he believed most of the county schools stocked their coal bins early this fall.

Meanwhile, winter struck at the Marion community this morning, driving temperatures to 11 above zero, forcing local residents to cut deeper into their diminishing coal piles. Local dealers have reported they have less than 1,000 tons of lump coal and less than 500 tons of stoker coal on hand and that is disappearing rapidly.

Industries Feel Pinch

Marion industries also were beginning to feel the pinch of coal shortages today. M. C. Murphy, chief Marion official of the Erie railroad, reported yard crews were being reduced about two a day because of the reduced car movement. The Erie yards usually maintain about 20 crews, but since the coal strike, there have been no trains hauling commercial coal and fewer yard men are used. There has been some re-

JUDGE DENIES USE AS AID IN U. S. ARGUMENT

Reported Earlier Statement on Contract Validity Not Admitted.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 — Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough today refused to admit into John L. Lewis' contempt trial a news reel record in which Lewis purportedly said that last spring's coal strike agreement would prevail for the duration of government operation.

The statement may be admitted in the trial "at a later date if the court sees fit," Goldsborough ruled, however.

Chief Government Counsel John F. Sonnett told the court he wished to enter the exhibit as proof of "willfulness" by Lewis in declaring the contract terminated as of Nov. 20. It was the contract cancellation that touched off the current walkout of 400,000 soft coal miners.

To avoid a dramatic court room showing of the news reel itself, Lewis' lawyers volunteered to accept a typewritten transcript. They first made known, however, that they objected to its admission in any event.

"The defendants interpose the objection," said chief UMW counsel Welly K. Hopkins, "that this evidence is not relevant in the contempt issue before your honor."

But Hopkins quickly added: "However, if your honor overrules our objection, the defendants will stipulate that the statements were made."

Sonnett told the court that the news reel film "accurately set forth the words and features of the said defendant Lewis."

In support of his objection to the evidence, Hopkins pointed out that the news reel was made last May.

"This was six or seven months prior to the restraining order which instructed Lewis to head off the mines strike" Hopkins said.

"It is not pertinent to the issue whether there has been any contempt on the part of the defendant in connection with the court's restraining order."

If Judge Goldsborough accepts the news reel in transcript form, government counsel told the court, it will not be necessary to call for testimony by Alfred Oeth, a Paramount News sound engineer. Oeth was among 11 witnesses whom Sonnett announced would be called to the stand.

Prior to the move to get the news reel recording into the record, the federal legal staff marshalled evidence designed to show that the coal strike interferes with a "sovereign function" of the government.

The evidence, government counsel told Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, is aimed at smashing the United Mine Workers' contention that private operators actually run the mines under federal seizure and that the UMW walkout is, therefore, not an interference with the government.

The sheaf of federal exhibits—mostly orders and documents of the federal coal mines administration—were read by the first government witness, Coal Mines Administrator N. H. Collisson, as the third day of the proceedings got under way.

Lewis is charged with contempt for failure to call off a contract termination notice that precipated the soft-coal walkout.

Chief government counsel John F. Sonnett announced at the outset of the session that 10 additional witnesses, including Secretary of Interior Krug, would be called to bolster the government's case against the UMW chief.

At one point during the morning session, an argument between opposing attorneys on the admissability of certain evidence brought from Judge Goldsborough the comment that Lewis and the union contend they are not in contempt and that he presumed "they are trying to show they acted in good faith."

Mackenzie Sees Greek Situation Near Explosion

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

That Greek situation—to which this column called attention a week ago—is getting so hot there's danger of spontaneous combustion which will set the whole Balkans aflame—and then what!?

Energetic Premier Tsaldaris has served notice on Russia that his country is going to lodge complaint with the United Nations, accusing "foreign sources" of inspiring disorders in northern Greece. And the key to this whole Balkan mess lies in the answer as to why he notified Russia rather than his northern neighbors direct.

Dewitt Mackenzie

The premier of course was employing the old school diplomatic language, which generally expresses itself by indirection—what we call double talk. That's not to say he is afraid to speak up—for he doesn't lack courage but he has had wide experience in diplomacy during his sixty odd years and is discreet. However, there is no misunderstanding what he has in mind, especially since other Athens authorities have pinned the thing in general terms to Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. This then is the situation:

In the first place there is civil conflict in many parts of Greece betwen leftists and the monarchist government. Fighting was reported in several areas yesterday. But the greatest trouble is being experienced in fiery Macedonia in northern Greece along the Albanian-Yugoslav-Bulgarian frontiers.

Disorders Nothing New

Disorders aren't anything new to Macedonia which has been a center of turmoil through the centuries. Now, however, authoritative quarters in Athens say the trouble is being fomented by Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, and that these countries are giving support to the upheaval.

The point of this alleged interference by Greece's northern neighbors is that they are Communistic states trying to secure the overthrow of the Greek monarchy and the establishment of a Soviet government. But the thing cuts a lot deeper than that. These three red states are satellites of Moscow, and are very much under Russian control. And Greece is England's little brother and looks to London for protection and guidance.

Explosive Situation

There we have a situation which unhappily brings Britain and the Soviet Union face-to-face in one of the hottest of Europe's hot spots. That, I judge, is why Tsaldaris addressed his notification to Russia—presumably on the assumption that Moscow has absolute control over Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

Russia aims at consolidating her position in the Balkans in order, among other things, to gain control of the Dardanelles and thus give her a hold on the eastern Mediterranean. But the eastern Mediterranan long has been Britain's sphere of influence, and so we see John Bull clinging sturdily to his foothold in Greece.

There roughly is the problem which Tsaldaris proposes to place in the lap of the United Nations. If he does so, history may record him as the man who demonstrated whether this new peace organization really would work.

Certainly it's a question which could make or break the UN.

Here we have a great issue which lies squarely between two of the three major powers—Russia and Britain—and with America having very decided interests in the solution. However, it might be well that it should come up for settlement right now, for the trend in the eastern Mediterranean doesn't encourage optimism as things stand.

In short, the realignment of the zones of influence in Europe would seem to have proceeded about as far as it can without causing a break. I take it that it was to prevent such a break that the United Nations was formed.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 2 — Two teachers, who lost their way in the densely-wooded mountains north of here while searching for evergreens for class-room decorations, were found early today huddled beside a fire.

A rescue party of Wiconisco residents located the teachers, Miss Marion L. Forney, of Paxtang, and Miss Beatrice Watkins, Wiconisco, about nine hours after they went into the mountains.

State police said they had wandered around the mountainside trying to find their way out but had built a fire a half hour before their rescue.

Wyatt Seeks Truman Backing in Quarrel

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt pressed for final word today on whether he has White House backing in his inter-agency battle over housing policies.

A national housing agency official told a reporter Wyatt was seeking a conference with President Truman to follow up his request for "reaffirmation" of his powers.

Wyatt's associates took his "no compromise" request as further evidence he would resign unless he gets full presidential backing in NHA's dispute with the reconstruction finance comporation, the war assets administration and the civilian production administration.

COMMUNISM AND FRANCE

Amiable Strong Man Thorez May Be First Red Premier

What do the election successes of the French Communist ...mean to the internal and external policies of the postwar ...e of France? Robert C. Wilson of the Paris bureau of The ...ted Press gives his views on these questions in a series ...e stories, of which this is the first.)

By ROBERT C. WILSON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS, Dec. 2—Maurice Thorez ...may become France's ...mmunist premier — is a ...-coal miner whose friend... ...en has charged anti... ...st Gen. Charles de ...

The 46-year-old Thorez, secre... ...eral of his party, is "the ...easonable of them all," De ... recently told an intimate acquaintance.

De Gaulle was making the comparison with other members of the coalition cabinet he directed up to last January, when he resigned in disgust over disagreements between the Communists, Socialists and popular Republicans.

"Always Smiling"

Thorez's aides attribute his even-temperedness to his crusading faith in the French communist party and its role in the nation's destiny. "He's an optimist, always smiling," an aide said, adding:

"The only time I've seen him angry was last winter when the deputies in the constituent assembly increased their own salaries. He believes, with Marx, that a government of the people should be an inexpensive government."

Thorez, who once earned a few francs a day as a young miner in the coal pits of northern France, now gets 50,000 francs (450) a month as vice president of the French cabinet.

"He turns three quarters of this back to the party," said his aide, noting: "Thorez has practically no personal possessions. The house in which he lives in Paris' suburbs belongs to the party, the big limousine which takes him to and from work belongs to the government."

Carries Simplicity Further

Thorez carries the simplicity of his life as far as having the cook eat at the family table, the aide declared.

Thorez is a big man. He weighs 200 pounds, stands six feet tall, and keeps himself fit by exercising when he arises at 6 a. m. daily. He does not smoke, and does not permit others to smoke in his presence.

Born April 28, 1900 in the village of Noyelles-Godault, in the Pas-de-Calais department of the heavy industrialized northern France, his father and grandfather were coal miners.

Thorez entered the pits at the age of 12, and stayed there until Sept. 30, 1914 when the family fled the region in the face of a German attack. He worked as a farmer and fisherman until the end of the war, when he returned to the mines.

Joined Party in 1919

He joined the Socialist party in 1919, and rapidly acquired a reputation as an orator, and a good fellow who liked to gather around a few companions and sing. He joined the Communist party a few years later, and in 1923 became a minor official.

In seven years, he rose to the secretary-generalship of the party, and two years later, in 1932 was elected deputy to the French chamber of deputies.

In the fall of 1939, Thorez was at the front as a simple private in the French army. Then Premier Edouard Daladier outlawed the Communist party, on the grounds it was sabotaging the war in opposing France's entry into it.

Thorez mysteriously disappeared from the army, and in November, 1939, was condemned in absentia by a military court for desertion. He later turned up in Moscow, where he spent the war. He has never disclosed how he got there.

Ordered Charge Dropped

After the liberation, Gen. De Gaulle—who had hurried to Moscow to sign a treaty with the Russians—ordered the desertion charge against Thorez dropped, and at the end of 1944 Thorez returned to France.

He was greeted hysterically by his party, which had gained an undeniable prestige in organized resistance against the Germans. Thorez' brother was shot by the Germans during the occupation.

Thorez was elected to the first constituent assembly and entered De Gaulle's cabinet, charged with rebuilding France's civil service system.

Uses Laval's Office

As a vice-president, Thorez arrives at his office at 8:30 a. m. It is the one used by Pierre Laval during the Vichy regime. Glittering with mirrors, chandeliers and gold decorations, it contains but a simple unadorned desk.

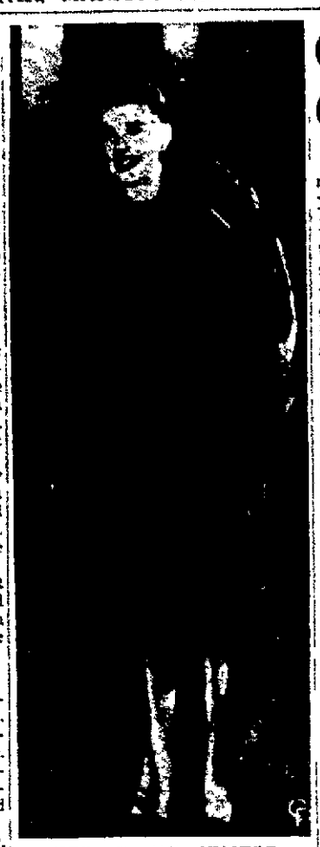
He is happiest, his aides say, when he can remain at home with his family, which includes four sons, the oldest 18, and the youngest, three weeks old.

Thorez separated 15 years ago from his wife, by whom he had one son, Maurice, now 18. His wife refused to divorce him.

Since then, he has had three sons by another woman, the last but a few weeks ago. The woman is Mrs. Jeannette Vermeersch, a Communist deputy, with whom he lives as a sort of a common law wife.

There is no attempt to hide this, which is fairly normal in France where divorce is extremely difficult to get. The French press published the news of his latest son's arrival on page one.

SAVED BY OPERATION—Doomed to almost certain death by a malformation which made feeding impossible, little Teresa Elizabeth Lofgran, one week-old, has a good chance of survival following a rare operation in Cook County Hospital in Chicago. When the child couldn't retain food an X-ray was taken which showed a gap in her esophagus. Dr. Karl Meyer reconstructed the esophagus in a 2½-hour operation.



WHITE HOUSE VISITOR — Looking very chic after calling on President Truman at the White House is film star Ginger Rogers. They had lot to talk about since Ginger was born in Independence, Mo., the Chief Executive's home town.

Alabama state laws provide that no one sentenced to death in the state's courts may be executed without a clemency hearing by the governor in person.

Overflow Crowd Packs Epworth Church for Singing of 'Messiah'

An overflow crowd packed Epworth Methodist church last night for performance of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," by the Marion Civic chorus and soloists. Almost 1,500 were present from Marion and surrounding communities, with many standing, and the chorus of about 100 members more than filled the choir loft of the church. Seating capacity of the church was taken almost an hour before beginning of the presentation.

Soloists for the fifteenth performance of the oratorio here, and the fifth by the Civic chorus, were Mrs. Madeline Dunlap Assenheimer of Upper Sandusky, soprano, Mrs. Esther R. Hale of Marion, contralto, and Joseph A. Schutte of Cleveland, tenor, who is a former Marion resident. Prof. Rexford Keller, head of the music department of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, directed the chorus and string ensemble numbers. Accompaniments were by Miss Maye Evangeline Lawrence, organist, Miss Rosaline Mears, pianist, and by the string ensemble composed of a group from Ohio Wesleyan university including Rowene Hamilton, Peter Gregory, Martha Bowlus and Rachael Raudebuch. Marion ministers who took part with invocation, offertory prayer and benediction were Rev. R. W. Faulkner, Dr. V. E. Basler, host pastor, and Rev. E. C. Klutey. Miss Lawrence played the prelude and two solo numbers during the program, and the string ensemble played the opening overture.

Telling the story of the birth, life, death and resurrection of Christ in song, the chorus presented ten chorus numbers and airs and recitatives were done by the soloists, the climax presented in the singing by the entire group of the famous "Hallelujah" chorus as the grand finale, with the audience standing as the traditional gesture of respect for the great work, in tribute to the composer and in appreciation for the effort of the musicians. Pictures of the entire group were taken at the close of the performance.

WON'T ACT AGAINST ACCUSED OFFICERS

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 2—No action will be taken against two policemen accused by deputy sheriffs of "tipping off" slot-machine operators of a raid, city officials of nearby Campbell indicated today.

Safety Director John Grdic, who attended a hearing yesterday on the charges, said:

"Evidence is so meager that in my opinion it does not warrant filing charges with the civil commission against the officers who have satisfactorily explained their actions."

The two policemen said they were looking for a robbery suspect and stopped in front of a club to ask a man if he had seen the person sought.

The deputy sheriff contended the two pulled in front of their car and warned the club of the impending raid.

Graham bread, the forerunner of whole wheat bread today, was named after Sylvester Graham who devoted his life to the cause of better bread.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Smoke Smell After Fire

Q. Because of fire damage some of my furniture still retains smoke smell, especially the box spring and mattress of my bed. What can I use to get rid of this smoke smell?

A. A great deal of that smell will go after a thorough brushing and airing. An additional help would be to use a deodorizing preparation which you will find on sale in many stores. If any woodwork is charred, it should be scraped, sandpapered and refinished. Outdoor airing and sunning of the spring and mattress will help.

Inside Walls Wet

Q. Two of our bedroom walls, facing north and east, become very wet in rainy weather. The clothes closet gets so damp that the clothing is mildewed. The house is brick, with full basement and slate roof. All bricks have been repointed and the house painted with oil-base paint. Still, the dampness comes through, particularly in the corners between ceiling and walls. Can you help us with our problem?

A. The trouble may be partly due to the construction of your house, namely, the inside plaster may have been applied directly on the masonry walls, with no air space between. With such construction the inside walls take on the same temperature—almost—as the outside masonry, and become chilled. The warm, moist air of the house condenses on the cold surfaces and forms the wet spots on the walls. It may solve your problem to put up another set of walls on furring strips to provide an air space. If you have a humidifier in your furnace, it should be shut off. Oil or gas room heaters should be connected to heaters should be connected to bustion to outdoors. The dampness may possibly be due to lakage around windows and outside doors. A carpenter should look for such open spaces and close them with caulking compound. The damp closet could have the walls protected with insulation board put up on furring strips.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

FAR BEYOND THE MEMORY OF MAN

● Many lines of work which were unknown a generation ago are now commonplace. The automobile mechanic, the radio announcer, the airplane pilot—all are products of the present generation. Other occupations had their origin far beyond the memory of man. Take pharmacy, for example, with its four thousand years of recorded history. We take considerable pride in being associated with a profession with such fine traditions. Pharmacy must be of fundamental importance to have so long endured.

'There'll be no sitting around a hot stuffy office all day. I'll have a nice car at my disposal, and Jimmy is going to make all the inspection trips. I know a lot of things over there I want to inspect. Sure, lots of things.

And little Jimmy stood there grinning and grinning his frank boyish grin, like a weasel with a plump chicken hanging from his jaws.

Later, a man who had met Jimmy at the party, told me

Well, in good time Jimmy will step on himself with his own big mouth. But meanwhile he's going abroad wearing a "Made in the U. S. A." label.

Abdominal Operation

People who must undergo ab... dominal operation today are not only more comfortable in the period immediately following their session with the surgeon than ever before, but they run much less risk of death.

This great reduction in the number who succumb to opera... tions on the abdomen is the result of advances made in the past ten years and, according to Dr. Albert O. Singleton of Texas University, it is due in large part to the fact that we know more about compli... cations of operation and how to prevent them.

The first step in making opera... tion safe is to put the stomach and bowel at rest by keeping wa... ter and food out of them; the sec... ond is to banish gas.

Gas causes contractions of the bowel just as do food and water. Keeping the intestinal tract quiet prevents rupturing of the bowel, blocking of the bowel, and per... itonitis or inflammation of the lining membrane of the abdominal cavity.

Swelling of the abdomen or dis... tension was formerly a common complication of abdominal opera... tions. Dr. Singleton believes that this distention is due to swal... lowed air. In order to prevent it he suggested that a suction tube be inserted through the nose, be... fore any abdominal operation is performed. This tube is attached to a suction pump and if the pump is kept working during the op... eration distention of the abdomen will not occur. Other advan... tages of this procedure are that it keeps the patient from vomit... ing during or after the operation; air swallowed by the patient is promptly removed and vomited material cannot be breathed into the lung.

A second important point in preventing complications follow... ing abdominal operations is to keep up the normal body func... tions. This is done by first mak... ing sure that the patient gets plenty of fluids. If he cannot take them by mouth they can be given by injection into a vein or under the skin. Care is taken that the patient does not get too much salt.

The suction tube is not used in cases of children. During its use it must be carefully watched to make sure that it does not be... come blocked. Just how long the suction tube will be left in after operation depends upon the type of procedure carried out. In the case of a ruptured appendix it is suggested that it be left in for from two or three days and for the same period following re... moval of the gallbladder. Of course, the surgeon will decide just how long the suction should be continued in each case.

For a Happy Ending

THERE are three basic requirements for a happy ending of the complications between the United Mine Workers and the government and between both of them and the owners of the coal mines.

They are only possibilities, but all of them could happen. All of them must happen to bring order out of the present chaos and to convince the public that the best possible settlement has been made.

First, John L. Lewis, having challenged the power of his government to act in the public interest, must be shown that this was a mistake.

Second, the coal mine properties must be restored to their rightful owners so there can be a resumption of genuine collective bargaining between miners and their employers.

Third, having profited by a demonstration of one labor executive's ability to tie up the nation at will, the United States congress must move promptly in its 80th session to forestall future demonstrations either by Mr. Lewis or any other labor executive.

A number of ways to meet this last requirement have been advanced. It is noteworthy that the most reactionary ideas are coming from statists who called themselves liberals during the New Deal and now are calling themselves progressives. These disciplinarians have had a typical reaction: take away the rights of the individuals involved and put the state in charge. It shows them in their true light as streamlined despots—advocates of authoritarian government at the expense of both human and property rights. Their views on breaking the power of coal miners are in startling contrast with the moderate view that miners must not be punished for the actions of a few individuals. They make it clear that they were interested in the New Deal only as a means of developing the power of the state over the people—all the people, coal miners and coal mine owners alike.

National Security

THE necessity for keeping fifth columnists out of government personnel is a national security problem. World War II revealed why no government can afford to be careless about its employes. In Spain, France, Norway and the Hawaiian islands, traitors were methodically planted to weaken resistance and to cooperate with the enemy.

Thus, President Truman's appointment of a commission to study the matter is as forthright a security measure as an appropriation for military weapons. The commission will give special attention to existing precautions, procedures for additional precautions and standards for judging loyalty. The last has been a real difficulty in the government's fumbling attempts so far to get rid of subversive employes.

Hair-splitting standards are hard to apply. For example, it might be impossible to prove an employe was disqualified because he believed in the overthrow of the government, unless he happened to be known as a member of some group advocating overthrow. Yet, common sense would disqualify any person whose behavior had even suggested doubts of his loyalty. If the President's commission were to recommend that no one whose record needed looking into could expect to qualify for government service it automatically would get rid of most of the employes that now bear watching.

Safety the Hard Way

NATIONAL Safety Council's downward revision of its 1946 traffic fatality estimate—from 38,000 to 34,000—suggests that highway safety experts may be learning a lesson the hard way.

Without being facetious, it's a fair guess that motorists are more careful than they were before the war because they must preserve their automobiles. The preservation of life is incidental.

A diver who knows he must make his aging rattletrap last because it's his last bet drives accordingly. He realizes that one good stiff jolt would be the end of his one-hoss shay. A pedestrian might do irreparable damage to a weakened fender. A blind passing on a curve at 60 might tear the heart out of an overworked casing. The stitches in time taken in 1946 to save automobiles have saved lives which safety statisticians had committed to their fatality totals. Four thousand Americans who won't be dead by New Year's eve can thank the circumstances that kept the autmobile manufacturers from meeting their production schedules.

Did You Know?

During winter months, for every 30 pedestrians killed in traffic during the three hours just before sunset, 100 are killed in the three hours just after sunset.

In 1940 Norway had one and one half tons of merchant ship tonnage per capita compared with one tenth of a ton in the United States for each member of her population.

About 9,000 school buses wear out each year in the United States and have to be replaced.

Twenty million men in the northern hemisphere work in the marine industries.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Defeat of French Socialists Cause of Concern.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—What happened to the Socialists in the French election has been the cause of grave investigation by the administration framers and conductors of foreign policy. The Socialists were the only party to lose appreciably. They dropped 27 seats, while the Communists were the only party to gain much, and they picked up 20 more seats. The Socialists had 120 seats in the old smaller provisional assembly, but only 93 in the permanent congress which is supposed to serve for the next five years (out of 619). Socialism has only 17.9 per cent of the popular vote in continental France.

The secretary of the French Socialist party admits suffering what he called "severe losses." He blames it on the unpopularity of the government, which has been largely ineffective, and "certain slander," which he does not explain, but which no doubt concerns the cooperation which the French Socialists gave the initial government with the Communists.

The Socialist party council, meeting later in Paris to form a policy on cooperation, was similarly ineffective, decided little and postponed decision. An independent French newspaper, Combat, said: "The influence of the Communist party will be accentuated by the decline of the Socialist party whose defeat might well result in total collapse."

Actually there is only one water-holding explanation for the two Socialist failures of the Socialist believers in liberty: They cooperated with the Communists. People do not like this. That made them unpopular with their right wing element, and they lost it. (The very same lesson of the American elections.) It might even make them unpopular with any element because communism is dictatorial socialism, rather than communism, and a dictatorial Socialist might as well call himself a Communist—or a Fascist if he has any desire for accuracy.

Error in Britain.

This proper evaluation of the election was even misread in Britain. The British are not cooperating with the United States internationally through an alliance or bloc agreement, but only because they have similar ideals of liberty. The mutiny of the young intellectuals in the Socialist party of Britain (headed by the Oxford parliamentarian) proposed to change British ideals to world socialism so cooperation with the United States would be difficult or impossible, (now that they already have our money and are buying their industries). Not realizing that similar cooperation with the Communists ruined the Socialists of France, and the Democrats here, the British young intellectuals insisted upon making the same mistake.

Now only in France have the Socialists cooperated with the Commies. In Italy and Poland there has been some cooperation, but in the U. S. Norman Thomas and the Socialist intellectuals on the New Leader know Communism wishes to obliterate their movement by absorption, and they hate it worse than a normal Republican or Democrat. They would not cooperate with it.

Yet it is undeniable the Christian Liberty front against communism has been cracked in the Socialist wing of both Britain and France, to the advantage of the Communists, who stage their own elections on a single entry beauty contest plane as they have recently done in Bulgaria and Rumania where only their satellites' parties are permitted to enjoy their electoral travesty on democracy.

Bevin Unchanged.

So far all this has had no visible effect on Bevin. The British foreign minister has not been pulling punches in the UN or Big Four meetings. He still realizes that the power of American foreign policy is based on bi-partisanship, which any liberty-loving people of any hue should accept in the face of a common opposition. His Socialist government expects to handle its mutineers and hopes to quiet them.

But in France the electoral symptoms are bound to come to a head. The National Assembly (congress) will be impotent. The Communists and Catholic MRP are almost equally divided, while the other third is split among many small parties, which may assume greater influence than they are worth in formation of a government. Such impotence may lead to the emergence of De Gaulle to head a real right move-

That's the greatest break for infants since the invention of the safety pin.

Ill-chosen names have caused more inferiority complexes than acne.

Many a mama, having satisfied herself that the new arrival is devoid of birthmarks, proceeds to brand it as permanently by naming it for monied, maiden Aunt Sassafrass.

How Radio Blankets Russia

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — Although it is not generally recognized abroad, Russia has the most powerful, most farflung radio system in the world.

Its thousands of broadcasting stations and its millions of loud speakers play an integral part in the educational cultural life of the people.

The U.S.S.R.'s stations broadcast in 55 to 60 different languages to just the people within this country and in practically all the main tongues of the world to those living in other nations.

To begin with, the Russians have radio sets, most of them equipped with short-wave receiving bands. Contrary to what you may hear aboard, the Russian people can listen to what they want and as long as they want.

Although there are numerous private receiving sets (the Soviet Union makes a good, inexpensive one with shortwave bands), most of the listening in this country is over the nationwide network of government-installed loudspeakers. Soviet citizens can buy this simple, inexpensive speaker in almost every city.

No Tax, No Commercials

There is no tax of any kind on radio receiving sets or loud speakers, as there is in England, and no commercial advertising is broadcast on them as in the United States.

One can get a program almost any hour of the day, although the central stations shut down between 2 and 6 a. m. unless there is something especially important.

To give a better idea, here is the average day's schedule:

The program opens with the sound of the Kremlin bells from Spassky Tower in Red Square, followed by the playing of the Soviet National Anthem. Then a voice says, "Good morning, comrades, this is Moscow speaking."

The first item is always news. This news is always read by a man and a woman announcer alternating on various dispatches. After the local news, the radio gives dispatches from abroad. This is followed by a program summary for the day, then usually some light music.

Early Morning Broadcasts

At 7 a. m. another news broadcast is given, generally fuller than the one at 6 a. m., and then there are setting up exercises by an enthusiastic anonymous gymnast. At 8 a. m. stations carry the reading of Pravda's main editorial, and at 8:45 a. m. there is another news program. By this time most of those going to work in factories and offices have been reached, and the radio goes into its program of entertainment and instruction.

Children's programs take up a large portion of the morning broadcast. These include the presentations of patriotic plays, which are stories about the war or the Red revolution. There are also musical programs for children or the reading of poems and stories by various types of authors.

After the children's hour there are some folk songs, short concerts or the reading of some lengthy, studious report by an official or a worker.

All during the day entertainment is interspersed with the latest news. The afternoon is devoted to interviews, light music, recitations and, as dusk comes on, there are more programs for children. Often, there are presenta-

Coal Strike and Foreign Policy

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 — Not nearly enough emphasis has been placed on the disastrous effects of the coal strike on American foreign policy. These were neatly summarized by two of the wisest observers in Washington—one American and one foreign—with whom your correspondents have recently talked. The American remarked grimly that if "the strike were much prolonged, we should simply cease to have a foreign policy," and the foreigner more specifically predicted that a long strike would produce "either Communist or Fascist regimes, probably, Communist, in France and perhaps Italy by the summer."

These men were no doubt overpainting the picture, yet the breeziest optimist must admit that the picture is very dark. The infinitesimal margin of well-being in France is directly dependent on American coal. American coal is an even greater factor in the economies of Italy and the Netherlands, which will be virtually brought to a halt by the cessation of coal deliveries. In Germany, food stocks are non-existent; starvation already threatens in the British zone; and a hold-up of food deliveries owing to transport breakdown will produce a catastrophe.

The figures tell the tale. In July and August, total American coal deliveries to Europe were running around 2,250,000 tons monthly. Of this amount, France received in the neighborhood of 700,000 tons monthly, while Italy got about 650,000 tons. The shipping strike cut deliveries by 40 per cent in September, and almost to nothing in October and early November. European users of American coal were already scraping the bottoms of their bins when trans-Atlantic freight service was resumed.

Disaster

Thus the coal strike following on the heels of the shipping strike is an absolute disaster. The disaster is intensified for France and the Netherlands, moreover, by the cut in reparations deliveries of coal from the Ruhr. It is possible to question the necessity of this step, in order to bring Ruhr coal production up to a decent figure by getting the mines in shape. But the French and Dutch Communists are representing it as a foul Anglo-American plot.

The worst of it is that the cold and hunger caused by coal shortage will inevitably hasten the grave political tendency already apparent all over western Europe. Anyone studying the French or Italian election returns must observe that the elecorates are beginning, so to speak, to polarize around the extremes. Communist gains have been emphasized in the headlines. But in truth in both countries the extreme right, definitely tinged with Fascism, gained as much as the Communists if not rather more.

Under the grinding pressure of misery, after the terrible experiences of the war years, men and women everywhere were abandoning the principles of sanity and moderation on which a free society must be based. They are flocking instead to the standards of violence and excess. If this process continues, a situation must eventually arise in which there are no alternatives but fascism and communism.

Already very disagreeable reports are current from France. On the left it is charged that General de Gaulle, in conjunction with the still powerful bankers and financiers, means to precipitate a financial crisis in the spring. The idea is that the crisis will offer the occasion for a sort of rightist coup d' etat. Those close to de Gaulle deny that he has any such intention, and this kind of plotting assuredly does not seem in character for a man of such rigid probity and, somewhat touchy honor.

On the other hand, the de Gaullists also predict an economic and financial crisis, simply on the basis of the underlying bad situation and the impotence of a divided government to deal with it. They further admit that such a crisis might cause France to look to her former leader. And they assert that de Gaulle would then form a government omitting the Communists—which could hardly be done without some violence, in view of the Communist control of the labor unions.

These reports are presented here, not as predictions of future events, but as symptoms of the atmosphere. At the same time, there are other and perhaps more probable reports of Communist maneuvers towards power. The important point is that the tendency to polarize around the extremes clearly exists, and will threaten the whole basis of French society if it continues and increases. The same holds true of Italy.

There is only one step that can be taken to halt this tendency. That step is to alleviate the misery in which the tendency flourishes by using our resources to the full. Part of the job must be done by the Europeans themselves, but part of job must also be done by us. American coal shipments must be resumed and enlarged, as the essential first step. Some guaranties of future participation in rising coal production in the Ruhr must be offered the French, as compensation for the present cut which has so embittered them. The French loan must be put through the World Bank with all speed. And in the case of Italy and other affected countries, similar measures must be adopted.

The penalty of hesitation or weakness is the risk that the tide of the new, post-war totalitarianism will leave the United States and Britain isolated and helpless in a hostile world. That is the specter that haunts the sleep of Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and all of those around him, when they permit themselves to think too much about the consequences of the coal strike.

CROSSTOWN By Roland Coe

"When you meet me at the train to show me your report card it must be a corker, eh?"

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Elmer to Harry

DEAR PRESIDENT TRUMAN:

In a letter to the Juvenile Delinquency Conference you said: "I have followed, with intensive interest, the rapid strides of your conference since its inception to a point where, up to day, the entire field of teen-age crime prevention is being considered on a cooperative basis by representatives of the Federal Government, State, community and private organizations." The report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation reveals that the roots of juvenile delinquency lie in the homes, the schools, the neighborhoods and the churches of the nation.

Well, Harry, I just think you are a little wrong when it comes to roots. A good many roots of the teenage crime lie right under your nose—in the schnozzles of the FBI and everybody else, and they are not in the homes, schools and churches. Name me a school in America that glorifies gun play or adultery? Point out a church that leers at marriage vows. What have you do you know that glamorizes murders, alcoholism, stickups, lust and loose living?

Where are you looking for roots and are you wearing blinkers? You can't really believe that the kids are getting all those lessons in the technic of crime from mom and pop. You can't be serious in implying that the kiddies get the ideas of cockeyed behavior, the quick desirable marriage vow and the haystack love motel from going to church. You know very well that those electric signs "It's sex-sational!" "It's torrid!" "It's red-hot!" don't blink at the kids from the schoolhouses.

Who's kidding whom, Harry? What church ever boosted the idea of sleezy wayside taverns, the street-corner liquor store? What school put over the cocktail lounge, the dime a dance hall, the double entendre radio joke?

What mother and father arranges to have our police officials, when returning with notorious killers, gun molls and ladies of the evening, pose for press and newsreels grinning from ear to ear as if it were all something highly entertaining?

Did the church, the school and the American home stage that recent farce where the girl friend of a principal in a notorious swindle was received at Grand Central as if she were a visiting celebrity?

Come clean, Harry! The schools, the home and the churches are doing what they can against a terrific battle and against every handicap. It must of been sumpin' you et.

ELMER.

LINES FOR A DEPARTED FISHERMAN

(To Roy Kelly of Waterford, Conn., a well known fishing enthusiast and guide, who died recently)

May he know new fishing waters,
Where the big ones like to play;
May he see more magic sunsets
And great dawns break o'er the bay!

May he glide down peaceful rivers
On a tide that's always high,
And the fish are always schooling
For a creel that's never dry!

May he know the best of buddies—
May he fish the deepest pools—
May he find the whoppers waiting
Just to test the whirring spools!

May the streams wind to the ocean—
To horizons far and dim,
And remind him of the waters
That were, oh, so dear to him!

A Tomcat's Diary

By TRUMAN TWILL

Dear Diary: It is tough on us cats whenever someone writes an article about us in the magazines. A lady has written us up in Reader's Digest and to listen to the Twills twitter about me now you'd think they just discovered what an asset I am to their state of confusion. That makes me uncomfortable, but it is one of the crosses a cat must bear.

This woman puts her paw on one thing that is true, however, when she says no one ever owns a cat. Cats are not possessed by human beings, which is hard for some humans to get through their heads. Because they cannot boss us around they do not like us. They want a part of anything they cannot control. They would rather have a dog that they can give orders to and lead on a string.

What I say is, to each his own. Human beings are not going to change cats by being against them, because cats are neither for nor against people. We cats take the position that people are to be tolerated for what they are worth, which isn't much. We make the best of them, and if it isn't good enough we find ourselves a new outfit.

This preserves our dignity. Most people think of cats as being independent and therefore they let us take care of ourselves. They don't chase us up, or insist on tying us to the end of a rope. We come and go as we please and have our own fun in our own way, which is some fun. In my own case, I have convinced the Twills that I will stay with them only on condition that my rights are respected—no more cat-chasing dogs. They know that and are acting accordingly. Several times they have slapped down their new pup for bothering me, and that is the way I want it. The pup is harmless and I half like the little drip but I am making it plain that either keeps her place or will lose her your companion, ha, ha.

One thing that tickles me is the notion they had of feeding me the same stuff they feed the pup, that dehydrated gunk that comes in a sack. The pup doesn't care for it, either, but eats it anyway. Me, I have refused to touch it, so they are piling up to me with things I like. I did really go with the Thanksgiving layout—scraps of white and dark meat and the neck all to myself. I think they laid it out for me extra because of that silly experiment of trying to clean my fur with fine granulated corn meal and a pinch of grape seed, except they used Cream of Wheat and Grape Nuts. Is it to be wondered at that cats do not get attached to people who are capable of things like that? I must close now and get some rest. Tonight I am going over to the other side of town on a blind date and I have to be sure to keep my eyes open. More later.

Marion Man Gets New Sight at 82; Discards Glasses

A Marion man who is the beneficiary of a phenomenon of nature in receiving his "second sight" at the age of 82, has discarded his eyeglasses for all except the reading of fine print.

Edgar H. Cowan of 465 South Main street wore glasses continuously for 40 years, then he noticed about six months ago that something was "wrong." He decided to return to an optician who had "looked after" his eyes before, and on examination, it was discovered that his eyesight had become nearly perfect again. The optician made lenses with bifocal sections for reading, Mr. Cowan said, but these also proved not to fit his "new" eyes. Two months ago, after another examination, he was advised to discard all glasses except the lenses for fine print, he said. His friends are hearty (perhaps a little envious) in their congratulations on his "miracle," he remarked.

Mr. Cowan, who looks 10 years younger than his "over 82," is a former machinist, having retired three years ago after 26 years of employment with the Huber Mfg. Co. He makes his home with a niece, Mrs. Grace Ulsh, of the South Main street address.

Mansfield Building Projects Approved

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2—Two dozen non-housing construction projects for northern Ohio have been approved by the district office of the civilian production administration. Total estimated cost of the projects was $213,143.

Approved projects, with grounds for approval, included:

Vitally necessary to public health and safety — Mansfield General hospital, X-ray equipment building, $20,000.

No impact on veterans' housing—Brandenburg Chevrolet, auto repair service, Mansfield, $8,000.

In China, the name for Santa Claus is Lau Khoong, which means nice old father.

ment, stronger to the right than MRP, which is a Catholic center party. Such a movement would propose to fight the Communist fire with fire.

The French majority political task at hand, however, would seem to be to gather the minority parties away from the Communists. Any De Gaulle movement would be effective only to the extent it eats into Communist support, or rallies the anti-Communist forces outside MRP. If he weakened MRP he would really then serve Communist purposes.

The break in the Socialist front of the United States of two hitherto best friends has had no appreciable effect so far upon the French delegation to UN either. They are mostly of MRP hue, having been chosen by Bidault.

Present Danger.

The immediate danger of the situation then is that this latest successful aid for communism is something about which we can do little or nothing, although we would fail ourselves if we neglected to understand it or were misled. With knowledge, we may hope to ward off a blow to the peace, as well as a bestirring of extreme right wing groups to band the people together more arbitrarily in order to ward off a communism which they will never accept, and perhaps we may start some work to repair the newly exhibited weaknesses of Socialism, because that turn against us might inspire a return to American isolationism. If we lose friends abroad, in British debates and French elections, we will then naturally be forced to take care of ourselves.

News and Operas

In the evening there is a continuous flow of the news, followed by heavier, more serious programs. These include full-length operas or full-score symphonies, etc. Many of these broadcasts are done directly from the stages of theaters.

Public meeting broadcasts, if important enough, are put on at this time. Toward late evening stations often put on jazz bands playing dance tunes.

Russian stations go in for more recordings than the biggest stations in the United States or the B.B.C., gut they seem just as appreciative of live entertainment.

The internal radio shuts down with the playing of a hymn. This entire program has gone out all over the Soviet Union on long, medium and short wavelengths. It reaches Russian listeners in the far-away Arctic, in the depths of Siberia, in the mountains and on the Pamirs, the rooftop of the world.

While all this is going on, Moscow and some other big cities are broadcasting special programs in many languages of the Soviet Union and the languages of foreign countries.

For Other Countries

Special programs are given at various hours beamed to the United States, others to Britain. They are different, of course, than the internal programs, featuring commentaries on the international situation and giving the Russian side on many questions of the day.

Radio programs appear in the papers, and Russian listeners can map out their day or night listening.

In addition to loud speakers in apartments, many loud speakers are placed in the city at corners, on squares, and in parks. While these do not operate all the time, they are turned on for special occasions and holidays.

Russia is constantly building and rebuilding its radio, and her biggest stations are among the most powerful in the world.

Mathiot - Diehl Ceremony Read At Bride's Home

MRS. HOWARD H. DIEHL

A GOWN of white candlelight satin was worn by Miss Allyn Virginia Mathiot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Mathiot of 358 Brightwood drive, when she became the bride of Howard Harding Diehl, Wednesday morning, Nov. 27. Simplicity marked the ceremony read at 11:30 o'clock in the living room of the Mathiot home by Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

To repeat their vows the couple stood before the mantel banked with woodwardia and huckleberry foliage through which were scattered tiny clusters of white pompons. At either side were triple branched candelabra with lighted tapers and tall white urns filled with white chrysanthemums in graduated sizes. Blooming chrysanthemum plants completed the decorative theme.

Mr. Mathiot gave his daughter in marriage. Her dress, fashioned with a trim fitted bodice and slim floor length skirt had a long circular train attached to a fitted yoke that terminated in long soft folds of the satin and tied into a bow that cascaded gracefully down the front of the skirt. The cameo neckline was outlined with a wide fold of the satin and the long fitted sleeves were pointed at the hand. The fingertip veil of white bridal illusion was caught at either side with handmade flowers of candlelight satin centered with orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet held gardenias and white rosebuds with shattered pompons held with long white ribbon streamers and she wore the bridegroom's gift, a strand of pearls. For the traditional something old she carried an heirloom lace handkerchief which had belonged to her maternal grandmother.

Miss Patricia Lawler, who was the maid of honor wore a gown of royal blue taffeta fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and accenting the fitted bodice was a full peplum. Fullness in the back of the skirt formed a small train. She wore yellow ostrich tips in her hair and her bouquet held yellow shattered mums caught with long matching streamers. A frock of yellow taffeta with a matching halo was worn by the bride's 13-year-old cousin, Nancy Via, who was the junior attendant. Her flowers were a bouquet of small yellow pompons.

Robert Castner served as best man for Mr. Diehl who is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Diehl, and the guests were seated by the bride's brother, Walter King Mathiot. To light the candles Little Miss Pamela Smyth wore a frock in a blue shade with a halo of yellow pompons and assisting for the ceremony was Miss Maxine Schlagenhauf.

Miss Alice Brokaw played a half-hour program of music preceding the ceremony, her selections including: "Clair de Lune," Debussy, "I Love Thee," Prelude by Bach, "Liebestraum," Liszt, and for the processional the wedding march from "Lohengrin."

In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Mathiot were hosts at a reception at Hotel Harding. Mrs. Mathiot received in a black wool suit with which she wore a moss green satin hat and green orchids. Music throughout the afternoon was by Miss Brokaw. When the couple left on a wedding trip through the Smoky mountains the new Mrs. Diehl chose a green suit with a rust top coat and a leopard hat and muff. Completing her costume was a corsage of yellow and brown orchids. Upon their return they will make their home at 358 Brightwood drive.

The bride was graduated from Harding High school and attended Ohio university. Mr. Diehl, also a graduate of Harding High school served with the U. S. Marine corps for three years and saw duty in the South Pacific. He is bailiff in the Marion county common pleas court.

Out-of-town guests included Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Tremper and Mr. and Mrs. George L. Edgar of Portsmouth, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Via, Miss Nancy Via and Miss Alice Brokaw of Delaware, Mr. and Mrs. John M. McClelland Jr. of Longview, Wash., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Caldwell of Cleveland.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Mathiot were hosts at the rehearsal party at their home.

CIO TO DEMAND PAY RAISE IN ALUMINUM

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2—James Thimmes, vice president of the CIO United Steel Workers, said today that a "substantial wage increase" and guaranteed annual wage would be among the demands presented to the Aluminum Company of America at contract negotiations starting tomorrow.

He said the union would also seek an "improved vacation plan," health and welfare foundation and union shop. The present contract expiring Friday, provides for maintenance of union membership.

The contract demands were discussed generally at a meeting of the union's negotiating committee yesterday. Thimmes said more specific demands would not be disclosed until after the union's wage policy committee meets Dec. 18 and 19 to shape up demands to be presented to all the nation's steel plants under contract with the CIO union.

Thimmes said that since certain demands like the wage increase and amount of guaranteed annual pay would not be known until the wage committee acts, the union will negotiate with the aluminum company on other points and probably extend the contract until after the committee acts.

"The amount of the general wage increase will be left open until after the committee acts," he said.

Thimmes explained that the guaranteed annual wage would be built on the basis of "52 weeks' pay in a year."

The Steel Workers' present contract with the aluminum company signed in June of 1945, covers about 35,000 workers in 18 plants. It was the first negotiated with Alcoa since merger of the CIO Aluminum Workers with the United Steel Workers in 1944.

Plants involved are Alcoa, Tenn.; Badin, N. C.; Bauxite, Ark.; Brookfield, Ark.; Detroit, Mich.; Drury, Ark.; Edgewater, N. J.; Fairfield, Conn.; Hurricane Creek, Ark.; Jones Mills, Ark.; Mead, Wash.; Mobile, Ala.; Monroe, Mich.; Newark, O.; New Kensington, Pa.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Tremwood, Wash.; and Troutdale, Ore.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Dec. 2 — Elliott Roosevelt, off on a tour of southern Russia, has denied he charged the United States embassy or its officials with being implicated in publication of off-the-record remarks attributed to him.

The son of the late United States president, visiting the Soviet Union with his wife, issued the denial last night before leaving on a southern train trip of 10 days or longer.

(The statements were published in Newsweek magazine, where Roosevelt was quoted as saying at a party in Moscow that the U. S. had broken pledges given at Yalta, Potsdam and Tehran and was said to have criticized his country's current foreign policy.)

He said he and his mother in America had talked about the stories by radio-telephone yesterday.

In New York, Chet Shaw, Newsweek's executive editor, said the magazine had received no reply to an offer to print a 500-word statement from Roosevelt. Shaw said the offer was cabled to Roosevelt Saturday.

"Newsweek stands by the statement in its original story that the material came from a reliable individual who attended the party," Shaw said.

THREE IN HOSPITAL HERE AFTER CRASH

Auto Hits Engine at Crossing East of City.

Three persons were sent to Marion City hospital Sunday at 6:25 p. m. when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a train locomotive at the Big Four crossing five miles northeast of Marion, according to a report from the state highway patrol.

They were R. A. Spratt, 57, of Norwalk, driver of the car, his wife, Mayme, and Donald Laible, 15 of Columbus. Spratt was suffering a leg injury, his wife from shock and the Laible youth from possible chest injuries.

The accident happened, according to the patrol, when the Spratt car skidded and collided with the locomotive. The driver of the car told patrolmen he was unable to see the locomotive until it was too late to stop. The car was considerably damaged, patrolmen said. The locomotive was travelling about 20 miles an hour when the accident occurred. The injured were taken to the hospital in the Merle H. Hughes ambulance.

A second accident Sunday at 4:40 p. m. on route 4 four miles south of Bucyrus, sent a Shelby woman to Bucyrus City hospital with cuts on the forehead and three broken ribs. She was Mrs. Ella Snyder, 52, a passenger in an automobile driven by George R. Lloyd, 22, of Springfield.

According to patrolmen the accident occurred when an automobile driven by Benjamin F. Ebert, 36, of 857 Oak Grove avenue, Marion, struck the rear of an automobile driven by Donald Schutte, 23, of route 2 Kenton, and the Lloyd car collided with the rear of Ebert's car. All three vehicles were traveling south, according to the patrol.

IDLENESS

to be cut off today in about 1,000 homes.

Unemployment of almost a quarter of a million was predicted for the Pittsburgh district by industrial spokesmen who said the coal reserve has dwindled from 110,000 tons to between 75,000 and 80,000.

The steel industry received a new jolt in a Pittsburgh address by Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the CIO's United Steel Workers union, who said steel workers would expect substantial wage boosts during 1947, a year Murray predicted would be the greatest steel year in the nation's history.

Murray predicted steel profits next year would reach $125,000,000 and declared: "Therefore the industry is in a position to make these increases."

Clevelander Denies He Opposes Parley

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2—Board Chairman I. F. Freiberger of the Cleveland Trust Co. denied yesterday a New York Times report that he opposed negotiations between mine operators and John L. Lewis to end the coal strike.

The Times quoted industrial circles as saying "a clash of Cleveland financial interests underlies the split among southern soft coal operators on entering into direct negotiations with John L. Lewis."

The paper said Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland industrialist and banker, was bringing "strong pressure in support of negotiations to end the strike" and Freiberger was opposing the proposal.

"The bank, as such, has no interest in the matter," Freiberger said. "These matters must be solved by management. Trustees will not interfere."

Eaton was reported out of town.

Anti-Peddler Edict Brings Shanghai Riot

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Dec. 2 — Some shopkeepers hesitatingly reopened for business today as police with shoot-to-kill orders guarded against any resumption of the weekend rioting which resulted in at least 100 injuries and unofficial reports, denied by city officials, of five to 12 deaths.

Rioting began Saturday after municipal authorities sought to clear the streets of the thousands of unlicensed sidewalk peddlers. Mayor K. C. Wu later eased the order by restricting the vendors to certain sections of the city, but the rioting continued.

Navy's "Operation High Jump" Force Leaves for Antarctica

By The Associated Press

ABOARD THE U.S.S. MT. OLYMPUS at NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 2—Operation High Jump, the navy's huge expedition to the south Polar regions, prepared to shove off at 1 p. m. today on a 10,000-mile voyage for cold weather tests and new explorations of the mysteries of Antarctica.

Four ships, the Mt. Olympus, headquarters and flag ship; the ice-breaker Northwind, seaplane tender Pine Island, and destroyer Brownson, are sailing simultaneously with five ships from the West Coast.

The ships will sail into tropical weather, then into frigid zones, ice packs, past majestic icebergs that may measure 40 miles long, and probably blizzard and storms on the world's roughest sea, the Antarctic ocean.

The unit leaving Norfolk hopes to pass through the Panama Canal Saturday, then give all hands liberty in Balboa for two days.

From Balboa, it will head nonstop to the Antarctic after rendezvous with the ships leaving San Diego and Port Hueneme, Calif.

KRUG SUMMONED IN "BIG INCH" INQUIRY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 — A house committee, eager to learn more about what moves the government plans in the coal crisis, summoned Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug before it today.

The cabinet officer's appearance was compelled by a subpoena of the committee investigating surplus property. However, the secretary said the subpoena was uncessary—that he would have appeared voluntarily.

Ostensibly, Krug was called to tell the committee why the government was not ready, immediately at the start of the coal strike, to begin movement of natural gas through the war-built $143,000,000 big inch and little inch pipelines, running 1,500 miles from the southwest gas and oil fields to the eastern seaboard.

But committee members indicated they would fire questions running the gamut of the issues in the critical coal strike.

No member of this bar performed his professional duties with greater sincerity and candor, the resolution read. George Geran did not simulate. He stated his position openly and frankly and neither client nor adversary could induce him to advocate a cause or to seek an end which he did not believe to be fair and honorable. He neither deceived himself as to the proper course to pursue nor did he knowingly do or say anything to deceive another. . . .He will be remembered at this bar not only for his ability as a lawyer but as a man who was real. Tribute also was paid to his military career.

Men who served with Major Geran and who were associated with him in military organizations and affiliates in his profession are here to attend the services. Offices in the courthouse were closed during the funeral hour.

Russian Press Without Ads Or Comics Read Avidly by Public

(Last of five articles about Russian life and government and business organization by Eddy Gilmore who has lived in the Soviet Union for the past five years as Associated Press Chief of Bureau at Moscow.)

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Dec. 2—There must be no press in the world which is so avidly read as the Soviet press. Only a lack of newsprint keeps it from being the biggest press in any land and with more newspapers coming all the time, it may well become the world's largest in a matter of years.

Soviet newspapers have no large advertisements, no comics and no sport sections, as such. They carry no sex or sensations. Railway wrecks, airplane crashes, fires and automobile smashups are not news in Russia.

Some advertisements are published here, however. A four-page daily called evening Moscow devotes almost half its back page to ads. They cover such subjects as help wanted, announcements of new movies and the program for the Hippodrome racetrack.

Most Russian newspapers are four pages and have no advertisements, although the big regular dailies do carry small schedules of theaters and movies.

List of Big Papers

The biggest papers are:

Pravda, organ of the central committee of the Communist party.

Izvestia, organ of the Soviets, of the deputies, of the laborers of the government.

Trud, which means labor.

There also is Red Star for the army and Red Fleet for the navy.

There are two ways to receive papers, through subscriptions and by buying at kiosks in the cities. Subscribers get their papers delivered to their homes or offices by the postman.

There is a newspaper, of course, for all phases of life. There is the peasant's Gazette, the paper which covers the arts. There are papers which devote columns to science and medicine and a sport paper for Soviet sports. In many cities and towns of Russia, are local Pravdas.

Newspapers here pass through many hands and it is no exaggeration to say that every word is read by millions of persons daily. Newspapers also are pasted up on walls and behind glass cases all over the cities, and crowds swarm around them.

Not Interested in Profits

Newspapers here are not interested in making money so the more people they can reach, the happier they are, no matter if it is free.

The Russians do not have newsboys on the streets yelling out headlines and if they did the headline wouldn't be startling enough to halt a passerby as in the United States. The headline probably would be about a new blast furnace or about some comrade who overfulfilled his plan in a factory. It would not be sensational.

The papers are featured by lengthy, erudite editorials and exhaustive articles on weighty subjects. Presently a great amount of space is devoted to coverage of the United Nations. Editorials concern themselves with the collective harvest, revitalizing cooperatives and getting out labor reserves.

To give an idea, take the front page of a recent issue of Izvestia. Here are the headlines over various stories:

An editorial, two columns wide at the upper left corner, is entitled "Improve Activities of Cooperatives." Also on the front page are four columns of anniversary greetings from abroad on the anniversary of the revolution; "On the Eve of Artillery Day"; "Potatoes for Leningrad"; "Books for Rural Libraries," and "Cement Plants of Novorosisk." Other front page stories are "Works of Lenin and Stalin Published in Uzbek Language"; "Callup for Factory Schools and Railway Academies"; "Opening of Moscow Party School"; "Restoration of Moscow Leningrad Phototelegraph"; "Baku Petroleum Trust Fulfilled 11-Month Plan Ahead of Schedule" and "Zhdanov's Report Published in White Russian Language."

Papers for Children

There are papers of course, for the young Komsomols and papers for children which obviously are in somewhat lighter vein. They are profusely illustrated.

Russia has one strictly humorous magazine, Krokodil. It comes out weekly and contains caricatures, cartoons, jokes and humorous strips.

The country also has an ambitious weekly illustrated feature magazine called "Little Flame," which is excellently done and accompanied by good photographs and reproductions of paintings, sketches and other art.

There are magazines galore on the heavy side, featuring discussions on economics, technical and party subjects.

Most foreign news appears on the back pages of newspapers. Some times political cartoons are carried.

The foreign news is from Tass, telegraphic agency of the Soviet union, which brings Russian readers news from all over the world.

TO HEAD TRIESTE? Maj. Gen. Bryant Moore, above, 52-year-old West Point graduate, is being mentioned as a strong possibility for the position of governor of Trieste, a job created by the full-scale Big Four agreement on the status of the ancient and strategically-situated city.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

$15,000 PER FAMILY?

Editor of The Star: You want coal to keep warm, now. In the last year of peace, we have wanted bread, meat, sugar, overalls and many other things, while our government was shipping our supplies to other countries, and loaning (giving) to England, or destroying wheat, potatoes, etc., here to keep a price.

Our congressmen voted themselves a $5,000 increase of salary, or $15,000 per year now. A few of them opposed it. But now what will they do when many others ask wage increase too, and strike to get it? The coal miners now. Why not give everybody $15,000 a year income? At least to each family, because with modern machine production, that is possible.

Our schools are government controlled, our highways, our postoffice, are socialized. Why not the coal mines?

ARMY DECISION ON DRAFT DUE SOON

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—An Army decision is expected next week on whether to call the draft in January after the month holiday period. Top military advisers are expected to discuss the matter.

Official said recommendations were in the hands of Secretary Patterson and General Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of staff awaiting action.

Those advisers favoring a call on selective service for a quota next month are understood to contend it should span volunteer recruiting as well as supplement it.

Latest reports show volunteer recruiting took an upward turn in the third week of November after a steady decline for more than a month. But for the entire month a total of only about 20,000 was expected, representing little more than half the 37,000 monthly level by the war department as a minimum requirement of the regular army.

About 1900 amusement features and races commenced to outweigh in importance at County Fairs the agricultural exhibits which had earlier dominated them.

MOLOTOV SEEN AS STALIN'S SUCCESSOR

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 2—An unexpected new publicity buildup for Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov in the government-controlled Russian press set tongues wagging throughout Europe today in the popular game of trying to pick Prime Minister Stalin's successor.

Many diplomats and others who had not regarded Molotov as the most likely candidate were inclined to guess again after Moscow newspapers, reporting the 56-year-old Russian diplomat's election as an honorary member of the Soviet Academy of Science, lauded him lengthily as Stalin's closest assistant.

This almost unprecedented singling out of a Stalin deputy for public praise came less than a month after Stalin, 67 years old and by some accounts in poor health, failed for the second consecutive year to take part in the recent nationwide celebration of the Russian revolution anniversary.

To some students of Soviet affairs it looked as though Stalin might be stepping down or perhaps be gradually relinquishing his powers, and as though Molotov was perhaps being groomed for advancement.

Molotov, undoubtedly the Russian leader best known to the western world by virtue of his prominence in the big power deliberations at London, Paris and New York, has been a life-long worker for the Communist party and is one of eight vice chairman of Russia's council of ministers or Stalin's cabinet.

Should Molotov succeed Stalin it would surprise those who have been backing such other contenders as Georgi M. Malenkov, Andrei Andreyev, Lavrenti P. Beria, A. A. Zhdanov, A. I. Mikoyan and L. M. Kaganovich.

About 630,900 one-hundred pound barrels of cranberries worth from $8,000,000 to $16,000,000 are produced annually in the United States.

Ladies' Tresses Due For 1947 Trimming, Hair Stylist Says

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2—Prepare your tresses for a trimming, ladies, if you want to be in style next year.

That was the latest word today from the Cleveland unit of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists association, now meeting here.

Albert (Lemson) of Fifth Avenue, a New York stylist, said the new hair length would be from three to five inches.

As he put it, "the American woman is an individualist," who likes frequent changes and freedom from clips, wires, rats and lacquer."

Albert quickly emphasized, however, that milady was not thinking of returning to "the atrocities of 1920——the Buster Brown windblown and shingle."

A letter was read from department headquarters stating that a certificate of recognition would be given to all posts in the department of Ohio which obtained 85 per cent of the membership for the new year by Dec. 31 of this year. ATOMIC BOMB had its birth four years ago today when Dr. Enrico Fermi, using the pooled knowledge of such scientists as Dr. Ernest Lawrence, set up the first atomic chain reaction on an abandoned squash court at Chicago's Stagg field. This first man-made atomic fission mushroomed into the famed Manhattan Project under direction of Maj. Gen. Notre Dame, Georgia, Uclans Claim Mythical National Championshi

Think Army's Near-Upset By Navy Eliminates Cadet Outfit

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—Boosters of Notre Dame, Georgia and U.C.L.A. are claiming the college grid title today on the basis Army's close call with Navy in the final pre-bowl roundup of the 1946 season.

Georgia and U.C.L.A. rank at the top of the 14 unbeaten, untied elevens in the nation on the strenth of their major schedules but the Irish from South Bend, who wound up a defeatless campaign by trouncing Southern California, 26-6, have a valid claim through their 0-0 tie with the Cadets.

Army still could point to a shiny record of 27 victories and only one tie over a three-year span although they were within a couple of strides of a shocking defeat by the inspired Middies Saturday at Philadelphia. Army won 21-18.

Trippi Puts on Show

Charlie Trippi put on a show, designed to strengthen his bid for an All-America rating, by scoring three touchdowns and passing for a fourth in Georgia's romp over Georgia Tech, 35-7. Shortly after the game, the Bulldogs were invited to oppose North Carolina, 49-14 victors over Virginia, in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

The U.C.L.A. Bruins warmed up for the Rose Bowl date with Illinois by downing Nebraska "under wraps," 18-0, with Illini scouts in the stands. Running up 433 yards, the Bruins boosted their season scoring total to 313 points.

Scattered Games Remain

Although scattered games involving at least one conference title, the Big Seven, remain to be played, most of the teams finished their seasons Saturday. The exceptions are the 40 or so elevens which are due to compete in at least 20 post-season tilts from Dec. 7 through New Year's day.

Most of the bowl promoters have named the competing teams. St. Mary's and Georgia Tech falling in line for an Oil Bowl booking at Houston yesterday. Invitations also were extended to Virginia Tech and Southern Methodist for a Sun Bowl tilt at El Paso. St. Mary's downed San Francisco Sunday 6-0 and S.M.U. drubbed Texas Christian, 30-13, Saturday.

Rice assured itself of a share of the Southwest conference crown by whipping Baylor, 38-6, tying Arkansas which will joust with Louisana State, 41-27 winners over Tulane, in the Dallas Cotton Bowl, Jan. 1. Tennessee, which faces Rice in the Miami Orange Bowl, just squeezed past Vanderbilt, 8-6, in its finale.

Concludes Perfect Season

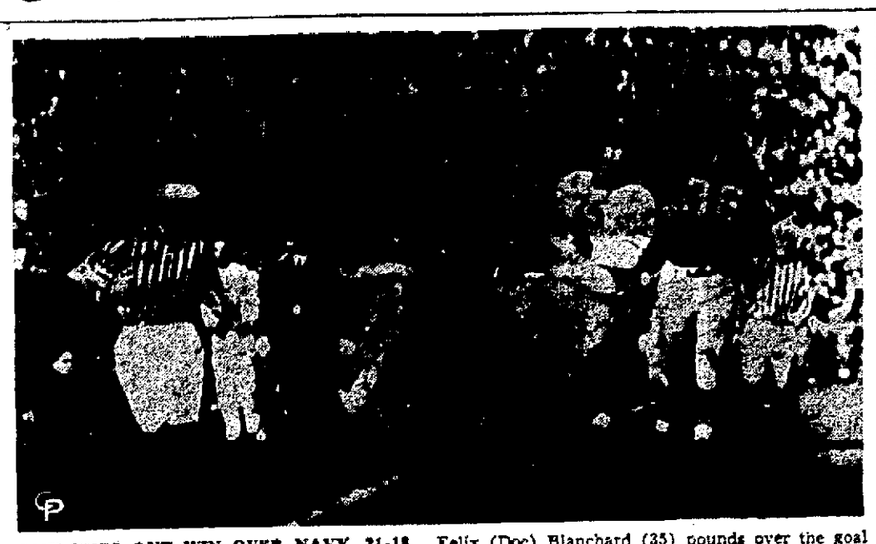
Hardin-Simmons concluded a perfect season by whipping Texas Tech, 21-6, assuring San Antonio of an attractive Alamo Bowl booking with H-S against Denver which can Clinch the Big Seven crown by downing Utah state Saturday. Other important games in the states Saturday will send Baylor to Texas Mines and unbeaten Bates to Toledo for the Glass Bowl struggle.

North Carolina State smothered Maryland, 28-7, in preparation for a 'Gator Bowl at Jacksonville. And college of the Pacific, which meets North Texas State at Houston in the Optimist Bowl, Dec. 21, shaded San Diego State, 19-13.

Holy Cross provided the upset of the day by knocking off Boston College 13-6 and Alabama did the unexpected by beating favored Mississippi State, 24-7.

After routing the Oklahoma Aggies, 73-12, Oklahoma was reported talking of a charity postseason game with Tulsa.

In other important games Auburn ran over Florida, 47-12, Michigan State took an intersectional test from Washington State, 26-20 and Oregon State defeated Washington, 21-12.



ARMY EKES OUT WIN OVER NAVY, 21-18. Felix (Doc) Blanchard (35) pounds over the goal line with his last touchdown for West Point at Philadelphia on Saturday. A tremendous crowd of 102,000 watched an inspired Navy team come within one down of winning as time ran out with the Middies on the three-yard line with one down to go, punching away at a bewildered Army. The Cadets finished their third undefeated season with a trembling 21 to 18 scare victory which saw the Navy score in each of the last three periods to miss a tie by points-after-touchdown, and a win by seconds as the clock saved the game for Army. New Conservation Proposal Hit by Sportsmen

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 2 — The board of directors of the League of Ohio Sportsmen went on record today as opposing in its present form a bill to be introduced in the state legislature next month to re-organize the state conservation department.

The bill would provide for an over-all conservation commission assuming control of forestry, soil, water, parks and wild life.

Following a meeting here, the board said it opposed the measure because it would create conflicting authority, cause confusion and result in "but little benefit to wild life restoration." The board said the bill gave no assurance that sportsmen would have any representation on the proposed new commission.

Hosey Wick of Jackson, O., president of the league, said, "the league is in favor of coordination of all conservation activities and a better park program, but the bill as written is inadequate to do the job."

The league recommended to the state conservation department that it make a census of game and wild life with the aid of airplanes and helicopters. It suggested that the Army Air forces at Wright Field, Dayton, would cooperate in the survey.

ARMY NOT LIKELY TO BE 1947 WEAK SISTER

Cadets Seen Fielding Strong Team Without TD Twins.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 — The "monster and his playmate" are gone, along with all but a scattered few of the Cadet wrecking crew, and the folks would have you believe poor Army will just about be laid out with "welcome" written on it for its rivals in 1947.

Now this is a nice story. It made a lot of the boys and girls mighty happy that the Black Knights were able to round out their three year run unbeaten Saturday just so they'll have some fond memories when things are tough. They did it by nipping Navy only 21-18 in a sizzler which wound up with the Middies on the cadet five and hollering that they should have one more shot at a touchdown, because the clock wasn't stopped when a sailor substitute came in a few ticks from the finish.

But all that waving of the crying towel just goes to show you how our Army's camouflage stuff has improved here of late. Because when Coach Earl Blaik brings out his 1947 edition, it is going to be about as puny and peaked as a pack of lions on a raw meat diet.

All that business about the Cadets being a soft touch for Navy and Notre Dame and a couple of other loaded outfits, if sliced very thin, would make a nice picnic lunch, if you like sandwiches.

Of the players to watch next year as end material will be Jim Rawers, six-foot-three substitute from Canton, O.

ST. MARY JOURNEYS TO BUCYRUS TONIGHT

Irish To Meet Redmen in Initial Basketball Encounter for Both.

St. Mary will open its basketball season at Bucyrus tonight. This sees the Irish embarking upon an extensive 20-game schedule which will end Feb. 25 when the Terriers meet Tiffin Calvert in Marion. The next contest for the Irish will be with Columbus St. Rosary at Edison gym a week from Tuesday.

Coach Gene Fetter spent last week putting his squad through extensive drills and long scrimmages on the Y gym floors, including dribbling with their eyes closed and lapping the gym floor.

Tonight will be the first meeting of the Irish and the Redmen. Neither team has played a regular game this season although Bucyrus has engaged their alumni, dropping a close 43 to 42 decision.

According to Al Pesek not much emphasis was placed on scoring in this game but he rather used it as an opportunity to see how the members of his squad would act under fire from outside opposition.

A development which may work a disadvantage to Marion cagers is that fan shaped backboards have been installed in the Bucyrus gymnasium. The Irish have been working out on a floor which has the conventional bankboards and the new type could throw them off their game.

Because Walter Anderson was forced to quit the team with a leg injury sustained in football, Coach Fetter now has only 21 men from which to choose his varsity and reserve squads. He will use 11 of these in his varsity lineup and the other 10 will form the reserves. The varsity squad includes juniors and seniors while the reserves will be composed almost strictly of so[illegible]omores.

The announced probable var[illegible] lineup for the game will see [illegible] Drake and Dick Schuler at [illegible] wards, Bob Stuber and Jim [illegible] loney at guards, and Pat Bray[illegible] center. Others who will see [illegible] tion with the varsity are L[illegible] ris, Bob Pruzzo, Dan Smith, [illegible] Ed Burke.

Bucyrus' starting lineup [illegible] see the following in action: G[illegible] Cress, Jim Gallent, Jim Kimm[illegible] and Dick Hertzer. Jim Miller [illegible] been mentioned as another p[illegible]sible starter.

Diamond Bigwigs Descend On L. A. Minor-Major Conference

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2—Hundreds of baseball bigwigs moved in from all directions today, and this slightly football-dizzy town surrendered to exponents of the national pastime.

Leading off a full week of individual major and minor league sessions, officials of the American association, the Pacific Coast and Eastern leagues scheduled confabs behind closed doors to thrash out respective affairs today.

With minor organizations holding sway the first part of the week in this, the first time the majors and minors have ever held their annual winter pow-wow on the Pacific coast, attention centered on a successor to Judge William G. Bramham, who disclosed Saturday that he intends retiring as president of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues.

The minors' executive committee met privately last night, and while no official word was given out, it was reported that George M. Trautman, executive vice president of the Detroit Tigers, has the inside track as Bramham's successor. The judge wants to step down because of failing health. He's had the job since 1932.

Opposition to Trautman was anticipated, however, on the grounds that he is a big league man and an official of a club with extensive farm interests.

The major leagues take over the later part of the week, with the big joint meeting set for Saturday. Slated to arrive today to preside was Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Frank Lane, new president of the American association, sounded a harmonious note when he said he anticipated no controversy between the minor and major groups in reading an agreement over the new major-minor operating agreement.

CLEVELAND BROWNS SHOOT FOR RECORD AGAINST SEAHAWKS

Will Try To Best 62-Point Margin Rolled Up by Los Angeles.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2 — The Cleveland Browns clash with the Miami Seahawks in Florida tonight and they have a new record to shoot at — the 62-point score rolled up by the Lost Angeles Dons in a 76-point game against Buffalo here yesterday in the All-America Pro Football conference.

The Browns, now the unchallenged champs of the Western division and headed into a title battle with the New York Yankees, should have little trouble with Miami.

But whether they can improve on the grid track meet here yesterday remains to be seen.

The Dons' triumph strengthened their hold on second position, a place they must defend against the San Francisco 49'ers in the Bay City Sunday. In the other game scheduled Sunday, Cleveland plays at Brooklyn.

Club officials said Los Angeles' 62 broke the previous high mark of 51 chalked up by Cleveland against Chicago, and the total topped the 73 points scored in the Cleveland-Buffalo game.

The final score: 62-14.

Redskins and Giants To Joust for Grid Title

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—Once again the Washington Redskins and the New York Giants will close out their National Football league season battling for the eastern division championship with a strong possibility of a tie that would force postponement of the playoff.

The Skins and the Giants collide at the Polo Grounds next Sunday in their final regular season game with the Giants holding a one game advantage over the eleven from the nation's capital.

In 1939 the two clashed for the title with the Giants winning, 19-17 when the referee called a field goal by Washington's Bo Russell no good in the closing minutes.

Four years later the two ended up the race in a deadlock and the Skins trounced the Giants, 28-0 in a division playoff.

All the Giants have to do to qualify to meet the Chicago Bears, western division winners, in the circuit's championship game is either tie or beat the Skins.

The original date for the title game is Dec. 15 but that will be shoved back if the Giants and Redskins wind up in a tie.

The Giants missed an opportunity to cop the flag yesterday by bowing to the champion Los Angeles Rams, 31-21 while the Greenbay Packers downed the Red Skins, 20-7.

Bob Waterfield, the loop's most valuable player last year, paced the Rams to victory by throwing three touchdown passes, kicking four extra points and booting a field goal.

At Washington, veteran Ted Fritsch of the Packers staged a one man show by scoring three times and converting twice to account for all the Packers points in their own win over Washington.

The Pittsburgh Steelers were eliminated from the eastern race by the Philadelphia Eagles who downed the Steelers, 10-7 at Philadelphia.

In the only other game, the Chicago Cardinals downed the Chicago Bears, 35-28.

COAL

Goldsborough said the punishment in that case might be "very different" from a deliberate violation of the courts restraining order

The evidence at issue Sonnett told the court, was intended to show that certain provisions of the Smith-Connally act applied in the dispute The Smith-Connally act prohibits any one from instigating strikes in a government-operated industry

Sonnett was trying to bring out what changes in the miners wages had been made under the contract which Lewis negotiated with the government last spring after a 59-day strike Goldsborough permitted him to proceed

Lists Witnesses

Sonnett said that in addition to Krug and Collisson the government will call these witnesses

Alfred Oeth of Paramount News Joseph A Genau, special FBI agent, Lt Cmdr Hamilton Acheson, coal mines administrator of the Iowa sub-area of se... Lt Cmdr R H Bennett ... coal mines administrator of the Fairmont West Va, area Briggs M Rogers general superintendent of the Baldeleben Coal Corp Sp... sey, Ala Lt Ralph N Ciarola coal mines administration representative from the sub area office in Uniontown Pa, Dr Glenn Parker, chief prices and markets sub section, coal economics division of the bureau of mines, Dr Philip Hauser assistant to Secretary of Commerce Harriman and George Haas director of research and statistics for the treasury department

Outside the court room these were the main developments

1 Southern coal mine owners gathered to thresh out sharp differences as to whether contract negotiations should be re-opened with the United Mine Workers If a contract agreement could be reached it would open the way for ending the strike and returning the mines, now held by the government, to private operations

2 Surveys indicated that 1,000,000 persons in coal-dependent industries may be out of work by the end of the week if the walkout of 400,000 miners continues Over the week-end the jobless total hit the 100,000 mark

Testimony Delayed

Testimony from cabinet-level witnesses was delayed by cross-examination of Navy Capt N H Collisson, federal coal mines administrator, begun before the trial recessed Friday

A high official told a reporter that before the government completes its case it expects to call most of the officials who signed affidavits supporting the Nov 18 order in which Goldsborough directed Lewis to withdraw "termination" of the UMW's contract with the government It was Lewis disregard for the order which led to the contempt charge

The officials include Secretary of Interior Krug, who signed for the government the coal contract which Lewis has declared void, Secretary of War Patterson, Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, Civilian Production Administrator John D Small and Defense Transportation Director J. Monroe Johnson.

Krug May Take Stand

Krug may take the stand tomorrow Today he had a date with the house surplus property committee The committee wants him to testify on the possibility of utilizing the wartime big and little inch pipelines to carry natural gas to the east to ease the coal shortage.

Government attorneys estimated that their case against Lewis may be completed by Wednesday After that, the defense plans at least two days of rebuttal arguments, and more time may be needed if witnesses for the union leader are called.

A hearing on the restraining order probably will follow the contempt trial

If Lewis is found guilty of contempt—and Goldsborough has said flatly that he believes Lewis is guilty — the union plans to carry the fight to the circuit court of appeals

With this in mind, the UMW leaders attorneys are building a case in the present trial designed to show that government operation of the mines it seized is only a "token operation," and that for this reason the sovereign power of the government is not involved

Goldsborough held that it was when he ruled last week that the Norris-La Guardia anti-injunction act does not apply in the Lewis case He said the court had a right to enjoin a labor union when a potential public calamity threatened

Over the weekend a spokesman for the coal mines administration announced that numerous applications for fines of $1 to $2 a day against individual striking coal miners had been approved by the government

Fines for contract violations—intended to prevent wildcat strikes — are authorized under the Krug-Lewis agreement They could not be collected until the present walkout ends and when deducted from pay envelopes would be paid into a union medical and hospital funds

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

As the loud knock sounded on the outer door, I saw my father, Harry Underwood, and "Mr. K." exchange significant glances.

"I fancy this is it, Chief," Harry Underwood said.

"No doubt," my father said, "and it won't do them any harm to cool their heels a bit until we get these bullet-proof metal sheets behind this screen, and see that everything is in readiness. Fortunately, the windows are all heavily screened, so that no one possibly can see what we are doing. Ah, Jim, that's fine."

Glows at Praise

Jim's face glowed at the praise, as he came into the room bowed underneath the weight of the metal sheets. He placed them quickly behind the screen, and then my father spoke again.

"Bring Katie in from the kitchen," he said, "and rush the boys up to their station in my wing. Harry, you must have bolted your food."

"I can eat a six course meal in three minutes flat," the big man bonsted. "This snack was easy, and I'm still swallowing some of it."

"Don't choke on it!" my father cautioned with a smile that told me his high spirits in the face of a dangerous emergency were again functioning. "If you'll put my daughter and Katie behind the screen, and then take your station, 'Mr. K.' and I will take ours.

"Good work, Jim," he added as Jim came in from the kitchen with a patently thrilled Katie in tow.

"Get behind the screen with Mrs. Graham, Katie, and don't dare to open your mouth. Margaret, I have one injunction to lay upon you."

A Dutiful Reply

"Yes, father," I said dutifully.

"Neither you nor Katie is to come from behind that screen until one of us here summons you."

"I understand," I told him meekly.

He gave me a sharp, quizzical glance, and I knew that he understood the true worth of my apparent meekness.

"See that you obey," he said with more curtness than he usually uses in addressing me. Then he shot an appraising glance at Harry and "Mr. K.," who had taken up positions on either side of the hall, overlooking the door, while he himself stood at the rear of the hall, facing the entrance.

"Your weapons all ready,—and well concealed?" he asked.

Weapons Are Ready

"To the last trigger finger," Harry Underwood, always irrepressible, answered, and my father's eyebrows narrowed into a frown which I knew was involuntary.

"Then, Jim," my father ordered, "go to the door, and ask who is there, in the usual fashion. I'll give you the word when I wish you to unbar the door. But, remember you are to step to one side so that the opening door covers your body when whoever is outside comes through it."

"I'll remember," Jim said solemnly as he went to the door, and lifted the piece of wood that masked a peephole.

"Who's there?" he asked.

"It's me, Charlie Kent," the well-known voice of my father's trusted taxi driver, answered. "And 'Mr. X.' is with me."

"Also," "Mr. X's" voice was the suave one I remembered, although now it was tinged with impatience, "there are three good fellows of mine, guards, that I want to have come inside. They're not safe out here."

"Hold it, Jim," my father said, and then he advanced quickly to the door.

"You know very well, 'Mr. X.,'" he said, "that it is impossible for you to bring anyone else into this house. Charlie Kent of course, but no other person."
